Introduction by Michael Palin

"The love and respect for humanity runs like a thread of gold through Michael's work. It entwines both him and Kris Hardin and all of us who believe that there is a way to tell the truth. And it seems very suitable that the collected work of an American with a Greek father should be entrusted to a library in England, for Michael is, in the very best sense, a man of the world."

"Any balanced view of the 21st century must acknowledge the frightening tensions, ideological barriers and economic inequalities which separate and threaten to overwhelm us. While Michael Katakis and Kris Hardin do not shy away from this present bleakness, their work still defiantly illustrates a commitment not to surrender those values which might offer the only feasible route to a saner world - a recognition that despite the exhilarating and endless diversity of human societies, we also share common dreams and aspirations. These pictures and words are the authors' attempts to give concrete form to this manifesto."
